

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A tool organizer is designed to arrange orderly a series of tools, each having a working end of a specification. The tool organizer comprises a base and a plurality of retaining members
5 mounted at intervals on the base for retaining removably the tools. The retaining members are formed of a retaining portion and a specification mark located along with the retaining portion to denote the specification of the working end of the tool. The retaining portion is used to retain removably the working end of 10 the tool.